Dental Treatment in the Era of COVID-19

Thank you for your continued trust in our practice. As with the transmission of any communicable disease like a cold or the flu, you may be exposed to COVID-19, (commonly termed "Coronavirus") at any time or in any place. Be assured that in this office we always continue to follow stringent state and federal regulations and disinfection protocols. This includes the use of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) for all dental procedures.

Despite our careful attention to sterilization, disinfection and the use of personal barriers, there is still a chance that you could be exposed to an illness in our office, just as you might be exposed at your gym, grocery store or favorite restaurant. Nationwide social distancing has reduced the transmission of the coronavirus. Although we have taken measures to enable social distancing in our practice, due to the nature of the services we provide, it is not always possible to maintain social distancing between the patient, dental healthcare team members and sometimes other patients in the office.

Although exposure is unlikely, do you accept the risk and consent to treatment?
